

Well, as for where too next in 2003, I think we will stay in Michigan. We left off with St Ignace last month. We actually spent a good amount of time in Michigan that year. As a matter of fact, we joined with the Goldman family in our sight seeing adventure. It really was a lot of fun!

We actually started in Berrian Springs, MI, because that was the site of the Annual Holliday Rambler International Rally that year. A large number of Canadians attend these rallies as well. Rallies used to be in the thousands, which required l-a-r-g-e open spaces, like we find out west!

What you don't see with these pictures is the RV sales area, where people are trading in their coach to get a bigger one?! Yep!

Next on the list is Newberry, MI which is in Eastern Upper Peninsula. Needless to say there are no shortages of lighthouses!

Next was Lake Leelanau, MI, which was a really fun stop, which you can easily see. This Lighthouse was erected in 1858. Next picture, taking a break on the bench watching sea plane activity. Now comes the fun with Bob & Henry feeling they just can't stay out of the water! In all fairness, it was very windy that day. Needless to say none of us on shore were laughing when those two disappeared from the surface of the water. The last couple of pictures include a picture of the beach and the evening sky behind the line of boats. From here, we all headed back towards Chuckey, TN.
